Principal's Message

As we approach Martin Luther King Jr. Day on Monday, I am reminded of Dr. King's enduring legacy and the profound lessons he left for all of us, particularly in the areas of character and integrity. Dr. King taught us that character is not just about how we behave when others are watching - it is about the choices we make when no one is looking. Integrity means standing firm in our values, even when it is difficult or unpopular to do so.

Dr. King's life was a powerful example of courage and perseverance. He faced countless challenges and obstacles, yet he remained steadfast in his commitment to justice and nonviolence. He challenged all of us to strive for a world where people are judged not by the color of their skin but by the content of their character.

Here at SSCS, we work every day to instill these values in our students. We encourage our students to treat others with respect, to stand up for what is right, and to dream big for themselves and their communities. Dr. King's dream reminds us of the importance of lifting each other up, working together, and never losing sight of the hope and promise of a better future.

I encourage all of our families to take some time this weekend to reflect on Dr. King's legacy. Consider reading one of his speeches as a family, volunteering in our community, or simply having a conversation about what it means to live a life of purpose and integrity.

Let us honor Dr. King not just on Monday, but every day, by striving to be individuals of character and integrity who make a positive impact in the world.

Our juniors will all be taking the ELA Regents next Tuesday, and several students will be making up

Regents. Please reach out to school counselor, Ms. Blowers with any questions:
